MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director (Intelligence)

1. At the request of General Schomburg, (a classmate and the Commanding General, Army Supply and Maintenance Command) I held an interview with [redacted] whose addresses are on the inside cover of the attached notebook.

STAT

2. While a student at the Industrial College, and based on a "hobby-type" interest of years preceding, [redacted] prepared the study, "Formula to Measure a Nation's War Readiness," contained herein. He has, he says, been keeping up to date as time permitted in analyzing his own paper in the light of daily events.

STAT

3. [redacted] feels that he can be of value to the CIA when he retires at the end of this month - April. Although he did not so state, I think he had in mind being employed by the Agency to continue his studies and perhaps to see if the theme of his study could be ground into our NIC and Watch activities.

STAT

4. I have read the study but I am not intrigued, primarily because most of his thesis is based on "empirical" factors developed by himself. However, please ask your people to take a look at it and see if we have any use for this type of activity or analysis, and whether or not we wish to follow up in any way with [redacted]

[Redacted]

Dear Colonel [Redacted]

I have had several of my analysts review your project "Formula to Measure a Nation's War Readiness" who feel that it does not lend itself to any angle of our current research, nor are we in a position at the present time to fund additional research.

I am returning the paper to you with our appreciation for your thinking of the Agency relative to this matter.

Faithfully yours,

/s/ Marshall S. Carter
